Nereids Krewe parades Feb. 2

The Krewe of Nereids will present its 20th Annual Mardi Gras Parade on Sunday, Feb. 2, at 2 p.m.

The parade will consist of approximately 100 units, including high school and college marching bands and drill teams, along with krewe floats and other marching units.

An invitation is extended to schools, organizations, businesses, families or neighborhood groups to join in the festivities.

"Mardi Gras is for everyone! We want to share our excitement and fun-filled revelry with as many of our friends and supporters as possible, and we feel that we can best accomplish this by encouraging participation in the parade," said the Nereids captain, whose identity is traditionally kept a secret.

For further information on entering the parade contact Dolores Richmond at 467-7033 after 5 p.m. or Sue Sheffield 467-5454 or 467-4041.

Bay council appoints zoning commissioners

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis City Council approved the appointment of four new members to the Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday.

Newly appointed commissioners include Joseph Marochino, Calvin E. Smith, Alice Holmes and Gordon Boh.

Marochino, a former commission chairman, is the only one of the new appointees who has previously served.

Commissioner Bill Tate was also approved for reappointment.

Remaining commissioners are August Scafidi and Clarence Ladner, both of whose appointments will expire in May.

Also in the meeting the council agreed to settle out of court with a former police officer.

Clifton "Gene" Dedeaux has received two favorable ruling from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Frankiewicz said.

In the first suit, a reverse discrimination complaint, Dedeaux claimed the police department hired a black applicant instead of rehiring him.

According to the second suit, when Dedeaux reapplied in 1985, he was refused the job because of the original suit.

Frankiewicz told the council to settle was the quickest and easiest way to resolve the matter.

The council also approved the use of capital improvements up to $7,000 to be added to the funds provided by Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner for paving work in Ward 1.

Councilman Lisa Coward said Ladner had agreed in a meeting Monday to provide $30,000 to be used to pave the first block of Felicite Street and a portion of Esplanade Street.

"Ladner was very cooperative and I am extremely pleased with the productivity of the meeting," she added.

Coward also said Ladner had agreed to make repairs to several gaping holes in the seawall caused by recent hurricanes, to grade and provide fill for Cedar Ridge Road and to clear a blocked drainage culvert in the area.

Chemical spill cleaned up

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Cleanup of a 30-gallon chemical spill at Borg Warner Chemical took only a couple of days to complete, officials said.

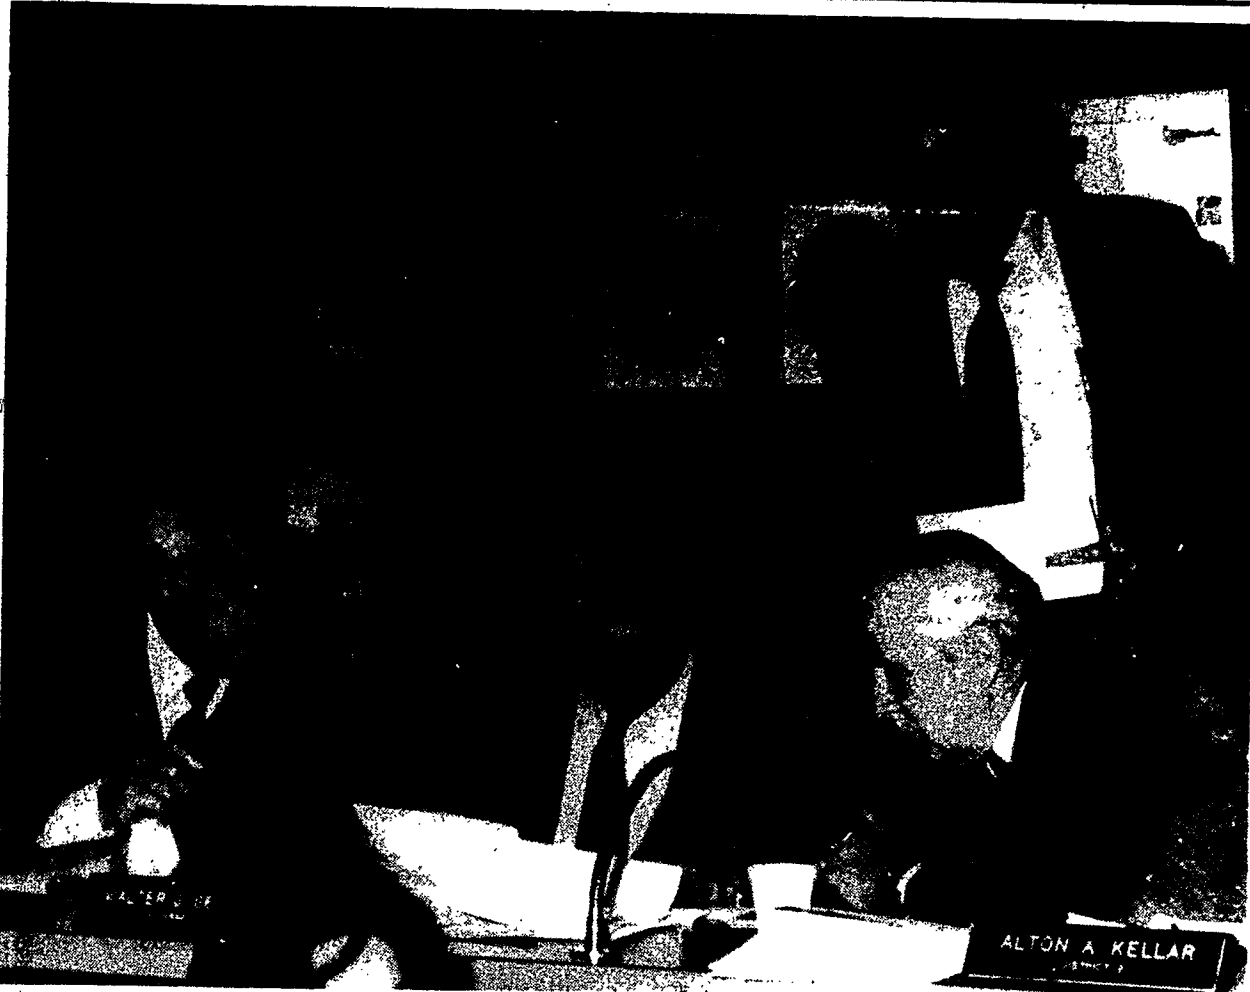

The spill, which occurred Thursday near the loading dock, was contained in an embankment and the contaminated materials were removed, said Leo Kowal, plant manager.

Kowal added that the acrylo spill did not constitute public health hazard and the major concern is the flammability of the material.

The spill was the result of a leak in a pipe connection at loading dock, he said.

"The spill was discovered shortly after it began and cleanup was finished over the weekend," Kowal said.

According to Kowal, dirt from an area measuring four feet wide by approximately four feet deep was taken to a hazardous waste dump in Livingston, La.

NO HELP FROM FEMA—Members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors listen as attorney Walter James Phillips reads a letter from Senator John Stennis. Waveland to light beachfront

BY DENA BISNETTE
The City of Waveland has expanded its plans for beachfront lighting to include the old downtown area.

The board of aldermen approved authorizing Mississippi Power Company to place about 70 sodium vapor lights along Beach Boulevard and Coleman Avenue.

The original plan called for placing the lights along Beach Boulevard within the city's corporate limits, but about two blocks of Coleman Avenue were included on the request of Ward Three Alderman Louis Smolensky.

The section of Coleman Avenue to be lighted extends from the beach to the Waveland Civic Center.

Mayor John Longo Jr. said sodium vapor lights were selected because they are about three times brighter than existing lights along the beach.

In other business, the board:

—Approved an easement request from the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District for an easement for a pipeline extending from Gulfside Drive to the Bay

St. Louis-Waveland line:

—Agreed to advertise for equipment for the city water department;

—Granted parade permits to the Krewe of Nereids, Krewe of Triton and Waveland Civic Association for Mardi Gras and St. Patrick's Day parades;

—Proclaimed Jan. 25 Beach Clean-up Day at the request of the Hancock County Beachfront Technical Advisory Council; —Proclaimed Jan. 20 Martin Luther King Day; and —Authorized Board Attorney Lucien Gex to draw up a contract with Ray Eaton and Associates, an engineering firm, for consultation services.

Succession passes House

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Members of the Mississippi House of Representatives passed a bill on Wednesday for the state's governor to succeed himself.

In a telephone conversation on Wednesday, local State Representative Walter J. Phillips stated, "The House bill was passed unanimously for Mississippi's governor to succeed himself."

On Tuesday Phillips said the House unanimously endorsed a teacher pay raise and agreed to fund kindergartens, on a 109-11 vote.

All three bills go to the Senate for final approval before becoming law, Phillips added.

Phillips reported he was in favor of all three vital issues.

Construction, classrooms major Bay goals in '86

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Completion of major construction projects and aiding the school district in implementing the kindergarten program are major goals of Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz for 1986.

"A large part of the newly constructed sewage collection system in the annexed area will be turned on in March," he said.

The $1.3 million project is part of a five-phase long-range plan to upgrade and install basic utilities throughout the city.

The project got underway in August and is running ahead of schedule, according to Frankiewicz.

He also expects to provide utility services to several residents who will not directly be served by the project under construction with extensions made by city employees.

Another construction project to be completed in 1986 is the widening and overlay of Central Avenue.

Frankiewicz said his major goal for the school district is the implementation of the kindergarten program.

"The city is committed to working with the school board to find space for kindergarten students without putting them in trailers," he said.

Frankiewicz added that the education system deserved better than temporary trailers or modules.

"The real challenge will be to provide funding for the school district for the next year," he added.

"I think we have to work closely with the school district to insure we get enough money and that costs are controlled so we can get the most out of it," Frankiewicz said.

Another goal of Frankiewicz is extensive work on the city's zoning map and zoning ordinances.

"The number of requests for changes and the controversy surrounding almost every request shows the need for some changes," he said.

Frankiewicz added that this didn't mean he would advocate substantial zoning changes of residential property to commercial or multi-family housing areas.

"The current zoning ordinances tend to be all or nothing, they need to be fine-tuned," he said.

Changes and revisions are also expected to be made in city utility and drainage ordinances.

Frankiewicz also said the city crews will be trying to bear down on drainage improvements during this year.

Another goal for 1986 is the extensive remodeling of city hall.

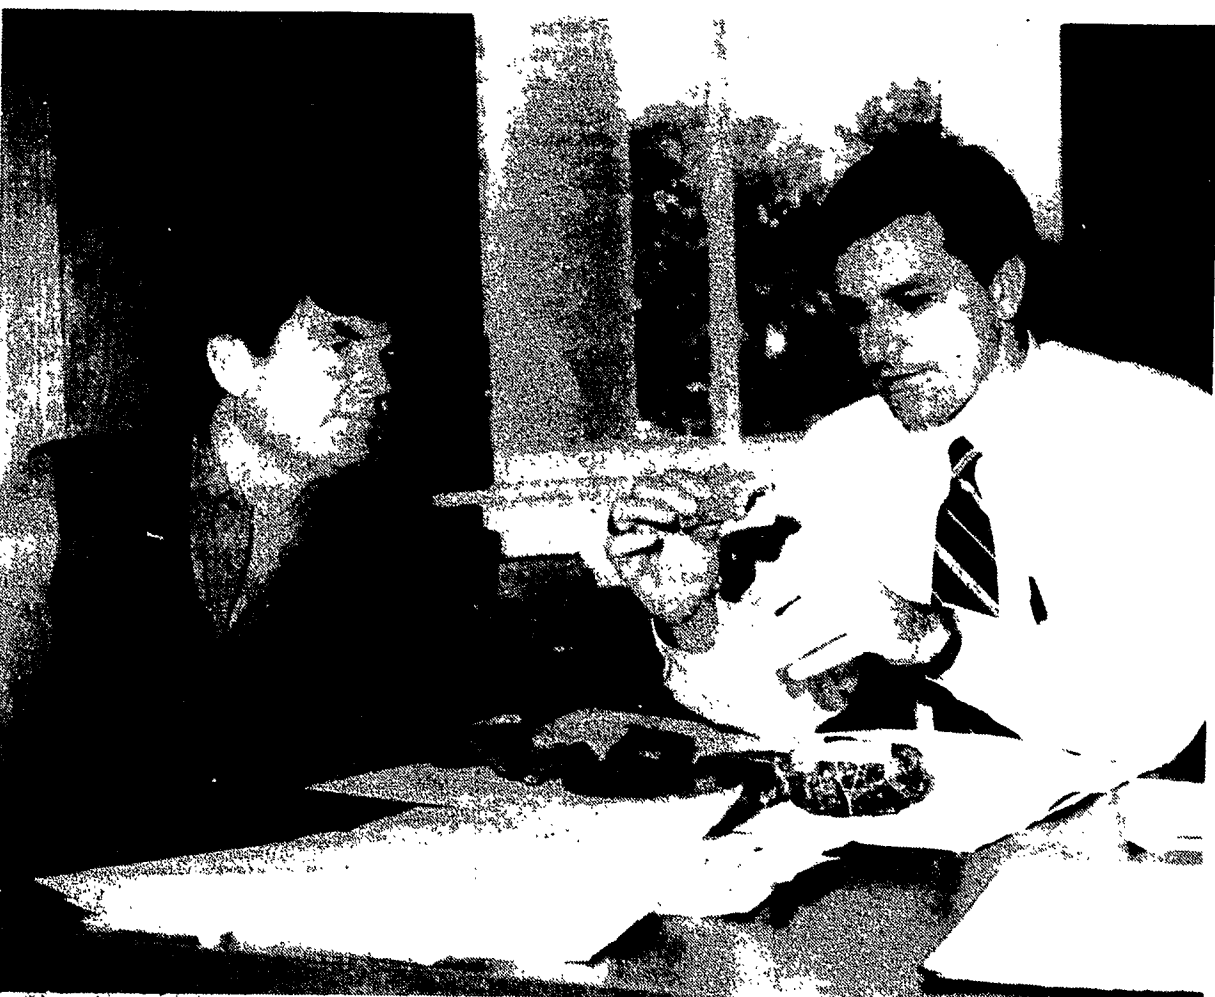

Frankiewicz plans to centralize as many functions of the city as possible at city hall. This includes moving the offices of the city inspector and the municipal court clerk to city hall.

Looking back on his first six months in office, Frankiewicz counts the completion of the consolidation of the city tax collection department with the county's tax collection department as a major accomplishment in 1985.

Bay St. Louis was the second city in the state to consolidate a service with the county, for a saving to the municipality.

Another accomplishment Frankiewicz believes worth noting, is the more efficient and improved methods city crews utilize to repair

Farmers should attend meeting Saturday

Hancock County farmers are urged to attend a meeting, Saturday, Jan. 11, 10 a.m. at the Stone County Courthouse.

Lee Taylor, Hancock County agent reported the meeting is scheduled to discuss the 1985 Farm Bill and how it will affect area farmers.

Taylor was called on by Representative Curtis Holston at the request of Senator John Stennis to help organize the meeting. Both Senator Stennis and Representative Holston want area farmers to be aware of impending farm programs to be implemented in the next couple of years.

Although many people have characterized the new Farm Bill as generous, not much is known at this time as to what it contains, Taylor added.

Taylor stated that many areas will be affected by the farm bill, including wheat, soybeans, corn, hay, cotton, dairies, credit and food stamps.

Also included in the farm bill is a Conservation Reserve program. This program will seek to take 45 million acres of erodible cropland out of production on 10-15 year bid contracts. There is also a 'swampbuster' provision to prevent producers from converting wetlands into croplands.

Taylor urges anyone with farming interests to attend the meeting Saturday.

ATTENTION LAND OWNERS!

Who owns the minerals under the surface of your land? Whoever it is has more control over the surface than you do. MISSISSIPPI LAW gives them an almost UNRESTRICTED right to enter your property at any time. A large percentage of severed minerals are owned by wealthy, out-of-state corporations and individuals. They pay no taxes on these minerals while surface taxes are constantly being increased.

The MISSISSIPPI LAND OWNERS ASSOCIATION believes this to be unfair and is making an effort to restore some control to the taxpaying surface land owner and ultimately get the minerals reverted to the land.

By joining the MISSISSIPPI LAND OWNERS ASSOCIATION you can help surface owners to have more control over their own land. JOIN TODAY!

Little Theatre president outlines group's goals

The Board of Directors of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre began its 40th season with the election of new officers.

Mrs. Michael Cuevas, a ten-year member of the board, was selected as president.

Mrs. Cuevas has been actively involved as an actress, director and producer for the theatre.

She has served as board secretary, publicity and membership chairman.

As a member of the Mississippi Theatre Association, Mrs. Cuevas has served as secretary and vice-president, and was the 1982 MTA convention chairman.

She is also a member of the Southeastern Theatre Conference.

Professionally, Mrs. Cuevas is associated with Redgo Ceramics, Doll Artisans Guild of America and the St. Tammany Doll Association.

Elected to serve as vice-president is Mrs. Claudia Murphy.

Mrs. Murphy has served on the theatre board for eight years, and is also active as an actress, producer and technician.

Mrs. Murphy is professionally associated with the U.S. Postal Service. She also serves on the Parish Council of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

Re-elected to serve as secretary to the board is Mrs. Layne Bourgeois. Serving her third term as secretary, Mrs. Bourgeois is also active as a producer and stage technician.

Joseph Marochino was re-elected to serve as treasurer.

A past-president of the theatre, Marochino will be serving his second term as treasurer.

Other members of the board of directors include Mrs. Peggy Dutton, Mrs. Donna Tingstrom, Mrs. Sherry Schwabacher, John Holmes, Herbert Pursley, Ms. Laurie Byrd, Mrs. Becky Rotundo, and Vic Frankiewicz Jr.

The new president appointed Tim Bourgeois as production chairman for 1986.

Other committee appointments will be announced at a later date.

"We are approaching our 40th season as a new beginning for our community theatre," Cuevas said.

"While preserving our character as 'the quaint theatre in the pines,' the board of directors will mount a massive restoration of our building and the grounds, expand our performance schedule with special events, and become a more vital part of Bay St. Louis," she explained.

Hancock schools to refuse transfer students

BY DENA BISNETTE

In an effort to alleviate overcrowding problems, the Hancock County School Board has decided not to accept any more out-of-district students in the county schools.

Transfer students currently attending will be allowed to continue.

Students who transfer from other districts must pay tuition to attend Hancock County schools and the district is presently making attempts to collect those fees.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex said he is presently trying to collect the $200 tuition fees from about 15 students, most of whom have Harrison County addresses.

He said in most cases the students were allowed to enroll without first paying the fee and the fees were never assessed. Some of the others actually live in the district but have mailing addresses listed with post-offices outside Hancock County.

School Superintendent Terrell Randolph said the district is mostly concerned about the possibility that additional transfer students may cause further overcrowding in the schools.

Several classes at Hancock North Central, where most of the transfer students are enrolled, and Gulfview Elementary School are currently over class size limits imposed by the State Department of Education.

Most are covered by a waiver granted by the State Department of Education but six classes were too large to obtain waivers.

The district could lose its accreditation if the problem is not corrected.

The overcrowded classes include three fourth grade sections with 34 students each and three third grade sections with 33, 32, and 33 students each.

All six are at Hancock North Central.

ETV Brief

OFF-BROADWAY

A television adaptation of the 1982 Off-Broadway play, "The Rise and Rise of Daniel Rocket," will be presented on "American Playhouse" at 9 p.m., Monday, Jan. 20, on Mississippi ETV.

Tom Hulce, who won a 1985 Academy Award nomination for his co-starring role as Mozart in the film "Amadeus," stars as Daniel, which he also performed on the New York stage. The production also stars Timothy Daly and Valerie Mahaffey.

The play is a fantasy/drama about a young man who firmly believes he can fly without the aid of a trapeze or flying machine.

The board agreed Monday to correct the problem by authorizing the creation of a new section of each grade, bringing the classes in question below the state limit of 27 students for lower elementary grades.

The board also authorized the hiring of additional teachers if needed.

Board member Tommy Shaw requested that new sections of first and second grade be created. Both of these grades are over the limit but are covered by the waiver because teacher aides are available to students in addition to regular teachers.

Shaw said the lower elementary grades are those in which it is most important that children be given individual attention.

The board agreed to consider Shaw's proposal if funds are available.

In other business, the board continued preparations for the implementation of kindergarten by hiring Paula Triche of Bay St. Louis as education consultant for that program.

Triche is a former early childhood curriculum specialist for St. Tammany Parish Schools and presently serves as an early childhood education instructor at University of Southern Mississippi.

She is also president of the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Mississippi Association For Children Under Six and assisted the Mississippi Department of Education in development of criteria for the kindergarten program.

In addition, the board scheduled a Saturday meeting with Charles B. Murphy Elementary Principal Phillip Terrell, who is serving as kindergarten coordinator for the district.

Randolph told the board the district has a shortage of space available for kindergarten at all of the schools except Murphy Elementary.

About five sections of kindergarten, which are limited to 22 students per classroom, are expected for Hancock North Central and four are expected for establishment at Gulfview.

Randolph said space will have to be found for the kindergartens at the two schools in addition to some method of compensating for the added load on the cafeterias.

"Kindergarten will be a whole different ballgame. It will be totally different from the elementary grades we have now, but we need to start getting ready now," he explained.

Quotables by CUEVAS

It is Girl Scout cookie time again in the Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County area.

Beginning tomorrow, Girl Scouts will be taking orders for cookies.

As many of you know, the proceeds from this sale go towards the operation of Girl Scout Camp Ita Kana in Wiggins.

Girl Scouting is on an increase in our area and it is through the help and dedication of so many of our adult leaders.

Just in case a Girl Scout fails to contact you about the purchase of some cookies, and you would like to order some, give a call to Shaun Tusa, 467-3999, the Neighborhood cookie chairman, or Crystal Burrows, 533-7886, the Service Team director.

We are hoping the local Girl Scouts will sell over their quota of cookies, and the only way they can do that is with your help.

On Monday of this week the Board of Supervisors declared Saturday, Jan. 25 as, 'Hancock County Clean Our Beach Day.'

The request came from the Hancock County Beachfront Technical Advisory Council (TAC).

This will entail the efforts of many of our citizens and cooperation from our governing bodies.

One of the main tasks of the special day will be to try and remove from the area frequented by swimmers such items as glass, cans, small rocks and sharp objects.

The proposal was presented to the supervisors by John Scaffide, chairman of TAC and myself, a member of the council.

One may wonder why the day of Jan. 25 was selected. The reason was because there is a scheduled low tide for that morning, and hopefully nature will cooperate.

We ourselves have had the misfortune of cut feet, and a rusty nail in our foot years back when swimming.

Efforts will be made to remove as many of these hazards as possible from our waters.

The TAC Council met late yesterday to work out some of the preliminary plans and we will give you more of the particulars as the date gets closer.

Chamber of Commerce members, Garden Clubs, Extension Clubs, Civic and Veterans organizations, Boys Scouts, Girls Scouts, Church Youth groups, Senior Citizens, and individuals will all be asked to help in this task.

We are hoping this project will be a success and help us all realize the importance of taking pride in our community.

We will give you more information later.

Many of our elected officials were on hand on Monday afternoon for the official groundbreaking for our new Hancock County Jail.

It has really taken a long time to get that far on the project because of having to get approval by the people.

It also took the efforts of many people in all walks of life in Hancock County to make the new jail a reality.

We realize it will probably be a year before the new facility will be completed, yet, it is now underway.

A Rotarian friend of ours told us on Wednesday how his wife gave up smoking some four weeks ago.

As an ex-smoker, we can say the first few weeks were the hardest, but one must remember not to take one cigarette, because the old habit usually comes back, and is harder than ever to shake.

We wish our friend's wife success, and hope that she will have the willpower to remain an ex-smoker.

Eyes on Mississippi

by Bill Minor

JACKSON—Mississippians often like to look around the South to see what other states in the region have been doing before they launch into some major governmental undertaking.

Now that the state seems to be coming around to reforming its constitution that in four years will be a century old, it's interesting to discover that Mississippi is the last of the 11 states of the old Confederacy to tackle a complete overhaul of their post-Reconstruction constitutions.

It must be pointed out also that not all of the other states have been successful in completely replacing their old constitutions; but each has had a constitutional convention or a revision commission the last 20 years, something that hasn't happened here.

Some excellent research on what the rest of the Southern states have been doing in state constitutional revision has been done by Leslie H. Southwick, a Jackson attorney and part-time professor of the Mississippi College School of Law who is a member of Gov. Bill Allain's new 350-member ad hoc constitutional commission.

An article by Southwick, "State Constitution Revision: Mississippi and the South" has appeared in the winter edition of the Mississippi Lawyer, the publication of the Mississippi State Bar.

It documents that the constitutional convention route has been utilized by three of the states, Arkansas, Louisiana and Tennessee, while the rest have had appointed commissions, mostly small in number, to prepare a draft document.

Only in Arkansas and Texas have proposed new constitutions been turned down by the voters, and in Alabama, a strange situation occurred when the state's supreme court held that a proposed new constitution could not be submitted because it was not drafted by a popularly elected convention.

By states, here is what Southwick found has been happening:
Alabama—A 1969 study commission drafted a new constitution that was submitted to the Legislature. The lawmakers placed only the judicial section on the ballot, and it was ratified.

Another draft constitution was prepared by a study commission in 1979, and after the Legislature made some revisions, a referendum on the new constitution was called for November, 1983.

However, the state high court barred the referendum, holding that under Alabama law only a popularly elected convention could prepare a new constitution.

A new constitution was drafted by an elected convention in 1979 and submitted to the voters in the 1980 election, at the same time as the gubernatorial and presidential elections.

It was rejected by the voters, after being caught in a hot political crossfire which saw then Gov. Bill Clinton being unseated.

Florida—A new constitution was drafted by a study commission and submitted to the voters in three sections in 1968. Each was adopted by a margin of approximately 55 to 45.

Georgia—Constitutional revision efforts go back to 1945. An 11-member Georgia Select Committee on Constitutional Revision was created by statute in 1977 which submitted comprehensive proposals for constitutional revision that were revised in 1981 by a special Legislative Overview Committee. The entire legislature later approved the draft and a new constitution was ratified by the people in November, 1982.

Louisiana—A 48-member study committee was first created by the Legislature in 1970, resulting later in the Legislature calling a constitutional convention in 1973. Most of the members were elected by legislative districts, with additional delegates appointed by the governor. A new constitution drafted by the convention was ratified overwhelmingly in 1974.

North Carolina—A 25-member study committee appointed by the state bar associations completed an editorial revision of the state constitution in 1968 along with six major revision proposals. In 1970, six of the seven proposals, including a general revision, were approved by the people.

South Carolina—A 12-member study commission created by statute in 1968 continued work until 1969, proposing 17 articles which completely revised the constitution. Submitted in groups in 1970 and 1972, 12 articles were approved, and since others have been ratified.

Tennessee—Five limited conventions have been held since 1952. The last in 1977 proposed revisions in 13 subject areas, 12 of which were adopted by the voters in 1978.

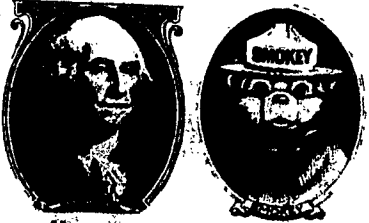

Texas—Two statutory commissions on revisions were created in 1967 and 1973.

And in 1974 the Texas Legislature sat as a constitutional convention, but on a final vote, failed by three votes to get two-thirds majority to submit to people.

Eight of the comprehensive changes submitted as amendments to voters next year were defeated, largely because of negative feeling that the Legislature drafted the constitution.

Virginia—An 11-member commission created by general assembly in 1969 prepared a draft which was the basis for a new constitution approved by a special legislative session. A basic document and three controversial sections submitted to the voters in 1970 were all approved.

'Santa Helpers' commended

Editor
Sea Coast Echo

On Christmas Eve morning I had a "Cabbage Patch" doll I wanted to give to a deserving child.

I first called the Bay St. Louis Fire Department, but they had already made their distributions.

I then called Ursula Penton, who is active in St. Clare's Church, and who referred me to Jean Scaffidi.

I've never met Ms. Scaffidi, but I called her several times that day and she graciously answered my questions and gave me the address of a family.

It was decided that food was needed also and "Santa" making the delivery would more easily be accepted.

After calling (with no results) every rental agency and several organizations on the coast for a Santa suit, I was referred to Danny Carter of the Waveland Police Department.

When I called the Police Department he wasn't in, but received my message and called me within a half hour.

Even though he had no Santa suit, he said he would check out the address and get back to me.

Again he called and confirmed the situation and even agreed to meet me that evening to play "Santa's Helpers."

He and his wife left their family at 7:30 p.m. to help make a little 5-year-old girl and her parents have a more bountiful Christmas.

Without these people taking the time from their families and busy schedules, a little girl might not have known that Santa loves her and was thinking of her.

Danny and Gail Carter and Ursula and Jean are truly a credit to our community.

Taxpayers should become involved in county unit system debate

Jan. 6, 1985
The Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

In your Sunday, Jan. 5 edition, Mr. A. A. Kellar, board of supervisors president, reviewed several 1985 county projects and offered proposals for '86.

It is noted that Mr. Kellar seemingly is concerned with reducing costs in many areas, as it should be, mainly with consolidation of tax collection methods, law enforcement and the educational system.

Mr. Kellar briefly mentioned the consolidation of our supervisor beat system versus the unit system and expressed his opposition to the already proven unit system.

In Coahoma, Hinds and Leflore counties the savings of the taxpayers' monies have amounted to as much as 75 percent, yes, 75 percent after their change over to the unit system.

Garden club's geographic contest restrictions upset BaySide resident

Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

For several years the Bay-Waveland Garden Club has held Christmas decorating contests for residents of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

We contacted the president of the club, as her number was listed for entries.

We had several conversations as there seemed to be a problem due to the fact that we lived in BaySide Park, which could be considered Bay St. Louis as my mailing address reads.

Finally on the 18th I talked to the club president again and was told that my home would be judged that evening or the next.

I was very upset to find that our home had been scratched from the judges' list after my last conversation with the club president.

I contacted her after the judging and she could not tell me why this happened.

If certain areas of Bay-Waveland are to be excluded, then the club should announce that in their contest rules.

Like many other lovely decorated homes, we decorate each year for our pleasure and the joy of Christmas for everyone in all areas, not just the limited areas of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club.

In my final note, "It's not whether you win or lose but how you play the game."

State auto deaths decline

For the fourth consecutive year, deaths resulting from automobile crashes have declined in Mississippi.

Preliminary reports compiled by the Mississippi Highway Patrol indicate that 19 fewer people died in automobile crashes on streets and highways during 1985 than during the previous year.

Highway death statistics from the patrol during the 10-year period between 1976 and 1985 are:

YEAR	DEATHS
1976	677
1977	680
1978	684
1979	718
1980	697
1981	745
1982	728
1983	716
1984	680
1985	661

Deaths occurring from injuries sustained in accidents that took place in 1985 will be included in that year's total until January 15.

"The three percent decrease in traffic fatalities is good news for a Mississippians, especially law enforcement personnel charged with the responsibility of improving traffic safety," Public Safety Commissioner James L. Roberts Jr. said.

"A change in driver attitudes has taken place and is reflected by the lower death rate and fewer deaths under the influence (DUI) of drug and alcohol arrests being made.

"There is a correlation between fewer fatalities and fewer DUI arrests, which further proves that drinking and driving is a fatal mixture," Roberts said.

"We attribute stepped up enforcement by law enforcement agencies stiffer DUI penalties, more frequent use of seat belts resulting in less death-causing injuries to accident victims," and increased public awareness to have also contributed to the decrease.

"We will work toward having even lower highway death count in 1986 and we ask all motorists assist us in these efforts," the commissioner said.

Firefighters' request gets sympathy

BY DENA BISNETTE

Members of two volunteer fire departments who have asked the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to help them obtain modern firefighting equipment and trucks "before the county burns down" have obtained sympathy, but no help.

On behalf of the Hancock County Volunteer Firefighters Association, Peter LeStelle of the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department addressed the board Monday along with representatives of the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department.

LeStelle said both departments are having difficulties that stem from lack of funds for modern firefighting apparatus, particularly pumper trucks.

He said the problem is not confined to Clermont Harbor and BaySide Park but is particularly bad in both communities.

All 10 volunteer fire departments in the county suffer from lack of equipment to some degree, LeStelle said.

"Since 1980, we've handled 562 alarms and only 65 percent of those were woods-related. About 20 percent are house fires now. We're no longer handling the day-to-day rural brush fires once associated with volunteer fire departments," he explained.

"Our mutual assistance agreement is beginning to fray. Recently we've had fires that took as many as six departments."

"Our lack of modern apparatus is definitely beginning to show and we have to do something about it before the county burns down."

The volunteer fire departments receive some funding from a two-mill tax where fire protection districts exist, but neither Clermont Harbor nor BaySide Park are included in a district.

About $3,600 provided by state and county funds and money that the departments can raise is used for protective gear for the firefighters themselves.

"The cost of equipment is so high now that we can only afford to outfit five firefighters," LeStelle said.

"We can't go to the people begging for money again because we've already got their money," he added.

"We have to patch and repair every piece of equipment we have when we come back from a fire. That is very time-consuming for the volunteers."

He said BaySide Park's pumper truck recently lost an axle at a fire and firefighters worked through the night after the fire was extinguished to repair it.

Clermont Harbor's main pumper truck was built in 1945. "We're holding it together with chewing gum, baling wire and spit."

He told the board that the fire departments in the county have shown that they can work together, but added, "We simply can't continue where two or three departments' equipment breaks down in the course of a fire because the baling wire or the gum gives way."

Because the fire departments are faced with the option of either saving all funds to purchase a truck, which costs about $60,000 to $70,000 new, or purchasing equipment for the volunteers, LeStelle proposed adding one mill for the fire departments, which he said would generate enough money to buy trucks.

"We have to sympathize with you but we can't put on any additional millage now," Board President A.A. Kellar said.

LeStelle then proposed that Jeff Taylor of South Mississippi Planning and Development District, who was also present at the meeting, be authorized by the county to look into the possibility of grants for fire protection.

He proposed that the county borrow to provide matching funds, but Attorney Walter James Phillips, substituting for Board Attorney Walter Gex III, said the board is not authorized to borrow for such a purpose.

In addition, Taylor said there are fewer grants available than in past years and feels the possibilities of obtaining one are relatively small.

The supervisors took no action on a proposal by Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge that the county buy several trucks and assign them to the fire departments.

Turning lanes likley

BY DENA BISNETTE

Southern District Highway Commissioner Bob Joiner has told the Hancock County Board of Supervisors that turning bays will probably be the first improvement possible on Hwy. 603.

The board met with Joiner Tuesday afternoon to discuss the need for improvements, particularly widening the road.

The board members said they would like to see the highway widened to four lanes from US-90 to Interstate 10 or the junction with Hwy. 43 in Kiln.

They are concerned about the amount of industrial traffic on the road, particularly increases expected after the construction of Baldwin Aircraft's proposed plant at Stennis Airport.

Joiner said that a count of existing traffic would have to be taken before four-laning could be considered. Four-laning the highway would be a long-term project that would take about two years.

"I suggest that you look at the short-term part, the turning bays, first because we can do those without making it a problem to four-lane later," the commissioner explained.

The supervisors proposed turning bays at Avenue B, Kiln-Waveland Cutoff Road, Bayou LaCroix Road and Airport Road.

Joiner said that the existing road easements are probably wide enough and his department can probably carry out the project without obtaining additional easements.

The commissioner said he would arrange a meeting between the board and district engineer for discussion of the details of the project.

Support offered to AIDS victims

Persons with AIDS and AIDS Related Complex, ARC, and those with a positive HTLV III antibody reading should not have to be alone, according to a statement issued by the board of the Mississippi Gay Alliance.

"The Alliance," said Eddie Sanifer, a spokesperson for the group, "will work with any AIDS persons without prejudice and give moral support and friendship upon request. No Mississippian need die alone."

"We offer our support," he said. The "Persons with AIDS" project of the Alliance is currently working in Meridian, Jackson, and on the Gulf Coast to raise funds for a personal care facility to be opened in the Jackson area.

"The Alliance," said Sanifer, "with members throughout the state, will be ready to be friends for those who have lost family and community support."

Sanifer said there are two pamphlets available. They are "Should I have the Test?" and "Up-date: Information on AIDS."

These pamphlets are available by writing the Alliance at P.O. Box 8342, Jackson, MS 39204, or calling (601) 353-7611.

Asphalt paving gives slight relief of drainage problems at Bay Junior High School

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Water continues to stand following a heavy rain in front of Bay Junior High School although the area was recently asphalt paved.

School Principal W. J. Cameron blames the continued problem on the blocked drains in the area.

"There are four drains around this school that are almost completely blocked," he said.

"Our students have to wade through water to get to the S. J. Ingraham building across the street when it rains," Cameron added.

Cameron said it took him nearly 10 years of requests to get the area in front of the school paved.

The area in front of the school was paved during the Christmas holidays at a cost of $7,380.

Cameron said before it was paved water always would stand in the front of the school after a rain.

The paving was necessitated by the mud being tracked into the schools by the students which created a potentially dangerous situation as the halls and the steps would become slippery, he added.

Water also stands in low spots on the recently paved areas but Cameron said the contractor had left his equipment at the school to return and fix these places.

Cameron also said before the paving keeping the drain in the front school yard open was very difficult because the dirt from the area would cause a blockage.

"The paving has eliminated the problem caused by the dirt blocking the drain and I just hope we can get the drain clear soon," Cameron said.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz said he would be working with the school to get the drains unstopped but that there were many places in the city where drainage problems are worse.

"We have places in the city that never drain and the area around the junior high school drains better than many places," he said.

Frankiewicz said clearing the drains around the school was on the list of priority drainage work for city crews.

Bay police recover van stolen in Louisiana

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A 1985 Chevrolet van reported stolen from Kenneth Brownson of Mandeville, La., was recovered by Bay St. Louis Police Monday.

The van was located in an apartment parking lot in Bay St. Louis.

Police Chief Ray Murphy said officers had staked out the area where the van had been parked for a couple of days to see if anyone would return to the vehicle.

A boat with an inboard/outboard motor and a trailer reported stolen by Brownson was discovered last week near Bookter Street and Railroad Avenue.

Bay police recovered the boat and notified the owner he could reclaim his property Friday.

Both the van, boat and trailer had been reported stolen Dec. 30.

Hancock trusty leaves, returns two days later

A Hancock County Jail trusty who walked away from the jail last Saturday afternoon returned late Monday after he called local authorities from Gulfport.

Robert D. Aiken, 50, was a trusty for over four months before his escape.

He was living in Waveland, originally from Michigan, and was arrested August 28 by Waveland police and charged with grand larceny, Hancock Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said. Aiken has been in the county jail since then awaiting trial.

Aiken lost his trusty status and will remain in a cell until the court disposes of his case, Peterson indicated.

Search continues for man missing for three weeks

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Hancock County officials plan to continue a search for a missing fisherman today.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson said the county Civil Defense planned to send two boats into the marsh area near Heron Bay to search for the body of the alleged drowning victim, Lawrence Lee Davison.

Davison, 26, of Lakeshore has been missing for nearly three weeks. He reportedly left Bayou Cadet Dec. 23 in a 15-foot black john boat.

The search for Davison began when he had not returned after two days.

The U. S. Coast Guard, Mississippi Marine Conservation, county sheriff's department and sheriff's dive-rescue squad, Civil Defense, family members and several volunteers are among the searchers. Davison's boat and gill net were found Tuesday, Dec. 31 near Heron

Bay and the search has been concentrated in that area, he added.

Peterson said although the Coast Guard and the Marine Conservation officials had gotten the search started, family members and volunteers had kept it going but all to no avail.

The sheriff's department is regularly spot checking the marshes around Heron Bay, Peterson added.

According to Peterson, St. Tammany Parish, La. law enforcement aided in the search Saturday with searches along the shoreline and by boat.

Bay man charged

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Tyrone Martin Whavers, 23, of 150 Cathy Drive, Bay St. Louis was arrested Monday and charged with grand larceny.

Whavers allegedly took approximately $800 of gold chains from a salesman at the corner of Sycamore and St. Francis streets, said Bay Detective David Murtagh.

Aided by a "good description" of the suspect, Murtagh and Bay Officer Thomas Ralph located Whavers within a few hours and recovered the chains.

Whavers was currently serving a three-year probation period for sale of a controlled substance.

The maximum sentence for grand larceny is five years incarceration.

County Agent's Notes

By Lee Taylor

LEADED GAS REGULATIONS

Many Hancock Countians have an automobile or other engine that was built before 1974. If you do, the reduced lead content in leaded gasoline will affect your engine and could pose a problem.

Currently the allowable lead content is 0.5 grams per gallon as compared to 1.1 grams per gallon previously. However, by Jan. 1, 1988, all lead must be removed from gasoline.

Lead was first added to gasoline in an effort to improve fuel efficiency and engine power. However, it became an obstacle to pollution control and the Environmental Protection Agency passed regulations in 1985 to eliminate the addition of lead to gasoline.

For pre-1974 engines, consult the owner's manual concerning the lead content of gasoline recommended. You may be able to modify the older engine in order to use lead-free gasoline satisfactorily.

Most engines built after 1974 can run on lead-free gasoline without problems since the newer engines have hardened valves that do not require the lubrication furnished by leaded gas.

Older engines without hardened valves may suffer from excessive valve wear. A possible solution to this problem is installation of hardened valve-seat inserts to prevent excessive wear.

Another problem associated with lead-free gasoline is the use of alcohol as an octane improver. Government incentives for distillation of alcohol for use in gasoline to make gasohol have prompted widespread use of this blended fuel.

If you have questions about the type of fuel your engine uses and how the new regulations will affect you, contact the County Agent's office.

BEST HAY USE

Warm, wet weather this fall caused a rapid deterioration in much of the round baled hay stored outside.

Hancock County farmers who examine this hay will often have to dig deep into the bale to find bright, dry hay. This indicates the quality of the hay is declining.

Where possible and especially where the supply of hay may become short, feed the lower quality hay first. Save the higher quality hay for later feeding when cattle will need the extra nutritional value.

Use racks, panels or rings to keep cattle off the hay and make sure only enough hay is supplied that can be eaten in a given time.

Have hay tested to determine the quality and the supplements that should be added to your cattle's feed.

Store as much hay as possible under a shelter. If shelter is limited, store the higher quality hay under the protection. Hay stored outside should be spaced to allow water drainage and stored on well-drained land.

potholes in city streets.

Although several streets continue to have potholes, city crews used more than 200 tons of asphalt for pothole patching in the last six months.

Frankiewicz has prepared a list of streets or sections of a street which require extensive pothole patching.

Priorities have been established for the projects on this list to guide city crews to repairing the most severely damaged streets first.

"There have been a few exceptions to the list in cases where the size or location of a pothole was creating a traffic hazard but basically we are trying to stick to the list," he said.

Frankiewicz says the improved method of pothole patching includes the "chipping out" of deteriorating asphalt around the area to be repaired.

The ground beneath the pothole is also dug out to insure a good base for the patch and an emulsion coat is used to seal the hole, he said.

The severe problems with potholes in the city is caused by the high amount of traffic, the thickness and age of asphalt paving on city streets and drainage problems that undermine the city's thoroughfares, Frankiewicz said.

According to Frankiewicz, very few streets in the city have a desirable thickness of asphalt.

"Central Avenue only has a three-eighths of an inch asphalt layer," he said.

Several other city streets also have relatively thin asphalt layers, Frankiewicz said.

A much less visible accomplishment Frankiewicz counts is the increases in wages of city employees.

"City employees were really making lousy salaries but with the last round of raises in December, salaries now meet the goals set in the budget," he said.

"We are doing more work with fewer people and doing the jobs better," Frankiewicz added.

He noted that these raises were not across the board but based on the individual performance of the employee.

The police and fire department employees are now receiving reasonable salaries, Frankiewicz said.

Before recent salary increases, policemen averaged $885 per month and firefighters salaries were only slightly higher, averaging $933 per month.

According to Frankiewicz, salaries for both of these departments now average $1,100 per month.

Overall budgeted salaries increased 5.5 percent but with the decrease in the number of employees the actual increase was 19.5 percent.

Other accomplishments of Frankiewicz included getting the Central Avenue paving project over its "bureaucratic hurdles" and under construction, tracing down substantial sources of unaccounted for gas and reorganization of the city's administration.

Frankiewicz also said the utility construction project in the annexed area is progressing well ahead of schedule.

"We are really having to rush to get proposed changes approved to keep from slowing up the contractor," he said.

The changes have included rerouting of some of the sewage lines and elimination of a couple of lift stations that will both save the city money and offer more expansion potential.

You don't have to be on Skid Row to be an alcoholic.

You probably already know that a lot of those people you see on Skid Row are there because of alcohol-related problems. What you may not know is that those very visible drinkers represent less than 1 % of the nation's alcoholics. The other 99 % are "normal" people — the ones who are holding jobs and maintaining families but having a rough time of it because their drinking has gotten to be a real problem.

All it takes is an inability to say "no" to a drink or to control the amount you drink, and you have a drinking problem — regardless of age or sex. Thousands of men, as well as a startlingly large percentage of women and teenagers, are struggling with alcoholism.

If you think that you or someone you know is an alcoholic, don't wait until you hit Skid Row to do something about it. Call one of the following phone numbers for help.

Cruiser commissioning scheduled at Ingalls

USS VALLEY FORGE (CG 50), fourth of twelve Aegis guided missile cruisers contracted by the U.S. Navy for construction at Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula, will be commissioned into the U.S. Pacific Fleet on Jan. 18. The new ship is equipped with the Aegis weapons system, the most advanced combat system afloat in the world today. This combat system was tested utilizing live missiles and gun ammunition last fall. After commissioning here USS Valley Forge will be homeported in San Diego, Calif.

New cruiser second Navy ship to be named 'Valley Forge'

Valley Forge is a locality in Chester County, Penn., the name of which has become synonymous with the triumph of American patriotism and self-sacrifice.

The Continental Army encamped in the forests of Valley Forge during the winter of 1777-78, enduring bitter cold and privation while the British Army enjoyed warmth and plenty in nearby Philadelphia.

But, inspired by the leadership of General George Washington and the training of the Prussian drill instructor Baron Von Steuben, the Americans rallied in the spring in a renewed campaign with heightened self-confidence, courage and fighting ability.

The name 'Valley Forge' was first carried proudly to sea by an aircraft carrier, CV 45, built with money raised in a special war bond drive by the citizens of Philadelphia.

The ship's keel was laid on Sept. 7, 1944 and she was launched on Nov. 18 of that year.

Mrs. A. A. Vandergrift, wife of the commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps, served as sponsor. CV 45 was commissioned Nov. 3, 1946.

After shakedown training, she joined the Pacific Fleet in San Diego in June 1947. During an embarkation with Task Force 38 she paid port calls in Australia, Hong Kong, and other Pacific points of interest.

In May 1950, she was in Hong Kong

when North Korean forces began their invasion across the 38th Parallel into South Korea. The first air strike of the Korean Conflict was launched from her decks on July 3, 1950.

Though she sailed to San Diego for overhaul in December, CV 45 was urgently returned to combat duty after Communist Chinese forces entered the Conflict.

Rendezvousing with Task Force 77 three days before Christmas 1950, she immediately began three months of concentrated air strikes against advancing Communist forces.

After nearly 10 months of constant combat action, CV 45 returned to the United States for a major overhaul in March 1951.

In December, she became the first aircraft carrier to return to Korea for a third combat deployment.

After a brief respite in the U.S. in the summer of 1952, she returned to the Far East in October — reclassified as attack carrier CVA 45.

Before a second overhaul in June 1953, she launched planes that dropped nearly two tons of ordnance on enemy targets. In all, she earned eight battle stars for her Korean service.

After overhaul, she was again reclassified, as an antisubmarine warfare support carrier, CVS 45, and transferred into the Atlantic Fleet in 1954.

During the next seven years, she conducted exercises and deployments throughout the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Overhauled once more in 1961, she was again reclassified, this time as the amphibious assault ship LPH 8.

In early 1962, she returned to the Pacific Fleet, where her initial duty was in the Far East with the Seventh Fleet.

Her next potential combat action came in 1964 when, after the North Vietnamese attacked the destroyer USS Maddox (DD 731), she spent 57 days off the Vietnamese coast — ready to land her Marines should the occasion demand.

Valley Forge earned nine battle stars as LPH 8 for her meritorious service in Vietnam, where she participated in such operations as "Double Eagle," "Fortress Ridge," "Beaver Tooth," and "Brave Armada."

She also earned three Navy Unit Commendations during her quarter century of Fleet duty.

She was decommissioned on Jan. 15, 1970.

After attempts to raise funds for using the ship as a museum failed, she was sold for scrap in October 1971.

The United States Navy's Pacific Fleet will receive its newest ship, and its second Aegis guided missile cruiser, on Saturday, Jan. 18, when USS Valley Forge (CG 50) is commissioned at Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton in Pascagoula.

William H. Taft IV, U.S. deputy secretary of defense, will serve as principal speaker for the 11 a.m. ceremony at Ingalls' west bank shipyard.

U.S. Congressman Trent Lott, Mississippi's Fifth District representative and House minority whip, will welcome Taft to Mississippi.

USS Valley Forge is the fourth ship in a series of powerful Ticonderoga (CG 47) Class Aegis guided missile cruisers being built in Pascagoula for the Navy by Ingalls, and second ship named to commemorate Valley Forge, Penn., site of General George Washington's encampment during the winter of 1777-78.

The cruiser is equipped with the advanced Aegis weapons system, the most capable shipboard air defense radar and missile system in the world today.

Also participating in Saturday's commissioning ceremony will be Admiral James B. Busey, USN, vice chief of naval operations; Vice Admiral Joseph Metcalf III, USN, deputy chief of naval operations for surface warfare; Vice Admiral William H. Rowden, USN, commander, Naval Sea Systems Command; Rear Admiral John W. Nyquist, USN, commander, Cruiser Destroyer Group Five; Rear Admiral John F. Shaw, USN, Aegis Shipbuilding Program manager; Captain George W. Dowell, USN, supervisor of shipbuilding, Pascagoula; and Jerry St. Pe', vice president of Litton and president of Ingalls Shipbuilding division.

Captain Theodore O. Atwood, CHC, USN, of the Dependents Advisory Board, Naval Surface Force, Pacific Fleet, will deliver the invocation.

Captain Theodore C. Lockhart, USN, a native of Haverhill, Mass., will command the new ship.

A graduate of Colby College, Lockhart has completed tours of duty at sea aboard six ships, most recently as commanding officer aboard the Ingalls-built Spruance Class destroyer USS Paul F. Foster (DD 964).

Mrs. Julia Vadala Taft, wife of Deputy Secretary Taft, who smashed the traditional bottle of champagne across the bow of the new ship during its September 29, 1984, christening, will also participate.

USS Valley Forge and other ships of the Aegis class will provide the primary protection for the Navy's battle forces well into the next century.

Aegis cruisers are large ships, 567 feet long, with a beam of 55 feet. Four gas turbine jet engines power the 9,400 ton ship at speeds in excess of 30 knots.

The ship's Aegis weapons system, the heart of her warfighting capability, is a significant advance in fleet air defense.

AEGIS CRUISER TESTED AT SEA— Extensive at-sea testing of USS Valley Forge (CG 50) and her Aegis system was completed last fall in preparation for her commissioning on Jan. 18. The Aegis weapons system is already at sea in the Navy Fleet aboard three other Ingalls-built guided missile cruisers, USS Ticonderoga (CG 47) and USS Yorktown (CG 48) in the Atlantic Fleet, and USS Vincennes (CG 49) in the Pacific Fleet. CG 50 will join USS Vincennes in the Pacific Fleet.

mounted on the four sides of the ship's superstructure, replace conventional rotating radars, enabling the ship and her crew to "see" in all directions simultaneously.

The Aegis weapons control systems can simultaneously fire and direct more missiles at more targets, with greater accuracy, than any other system.

USS Valley Forge is also equipped with a fully integrated LAMPS (Light Airborne Multipurpose System) MK III combat suite.

The suite includes the SH 60B Seahawk helicopter for antisubmarine warfare, ship surveillance, targeting and search and rescue; the RAST (Recover, Assist, Securing, Traversing) recovery system, which "pulls" the helicopter to the ship's deck during rough sea/heavy weather operations; and advanced electronic control systems.

The integrated LAMPS system significantly improves the ship's antisubmarine warfare capabilities.

Lead shipbuilder for five of the latest classes of Navy surface combatants, Ingalls has delivered 44 complex warships into the Navy's Fleet since 1975, more than any other shipyard in the country.

Ingalls delivered the lead ship of the Aegis class, USS Ticonderoga (CG 47), ahead of schedule in January 1983.

The second ship of the Aegis cruiser class, USS Yorktown (CG 48), also joined the Atlantic Fleet ahead of schedule in July 1984.

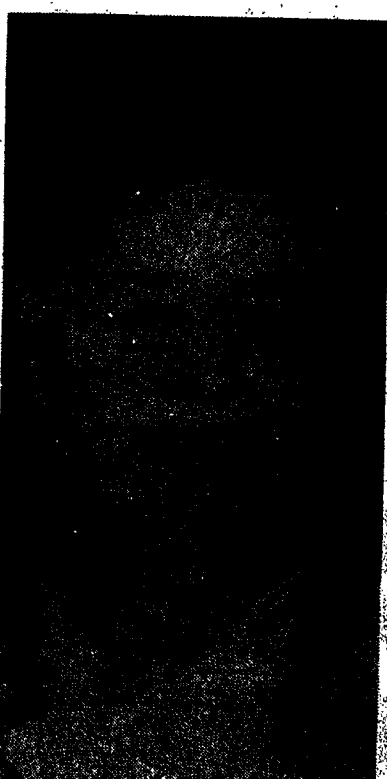

USS Vincennes (CG 49) became the first Pacific Fleet cruiser following commissioning in July 1985.

Following USS Valley Forge, Ingalls has eight additional cruisers in various stages of production, including Bunker Hill (CG 52), the first U.S. combat ship to be equipped with a vertical launching (VLS) missile system.

The shipyard is also building the lead ship of the Navy's new class of multipurpose amphibious assault ships, WAMP (LHD 1), and is overhauling the guided missile destroyer USS Preble (DD 46) and the submarine tender USS Simon Lake (AS 33).

BANK PROMOTIONS—Hancock Bank's Board of Directors recently named new administrative assistants, including Janet Anderson, left; Doris Carrio, center; and Mary Ann Puchen, all of Bay St. Louis.

Anderson is head teller at downtown Bay St. Louis branch; Carrio is assigned to Mississippi Test Facility branch at NSTL; and Puchen is at Bay 90 branch on US-90 in Bay St. Louis.

Heart Association provides free educational aids

The Heart Association's Health Education Program encourages young people to choose habits that will last a lifetime. Many cardiovascular disorders begin at an early age.

By late adolescence, many American young people have already developed a significant degree of atherosclerosis and show evidence of emerging high blood pressure.

If begun early enough, the effects of education on lifestyle could halt the course of disease. Heart health programming has been developed for students in kindergarten through grade twelve.

These programs encourage students to:

- Remain a nonsmoker,
- Make informed and healthful food choices,
- Develop habits of regular exercise and weight control,

—Maintain a blood pressure within normal limits, and —Understand enough about cardiovascular diseases to effectively use the health care system.

The Mississippi Affiliate has available "Putting Your Heart Into the Curriculum" guides at the primary, intermediate, junior and senior levels.

Each program package contains a variety of classroom materials and teacher references. Audiovisual aids can also be ordered to complement the package.

As part of the Heart Association's public education emphasis, these materials are provided to schools free of charge.

For more information about "Heart Health Education in the Young," contact Mississippi Affiliate, American Heart Association, P.O. Box 16063, Jackson, 39236 or call 981-4721.

Bay sergeant scores Army boxing victory

U.S. Army Sgt. Joel Jerome Wallace, 26, son of Johnny Wallace Jr. of Bay St. Louis, took the light heavyweight title in a recent Fort Gordon Boxing Smoker in Augusta, Ga.

Wallace, who has been boxing in Army programs for the past two years, scored a technical knockout at the end of the first round of a three-round event.

Twelve three-round bouts (three minutes per round) were included on the card.

The Post Signal, Fort. Gordon newspaper, reports each of the boxers completed a minimum of six weeks of intense, supervised training prior to the matches, with earlier training on an individual basis.

Wallace is the brother of June Holmes and Joy Anderson, both of Bay St. Louis; Johnny Wallace III of West Berlin, Germany, and Jefferey P. Wallace, also of Bay St. Louis.

The Sea Coast Echo SPORTS

Anabolic steroids and athletes

By Britt Dickens
Athletic Director
Oxford High School

(The following article is the result of a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the MS Press Association.)

One of the bigger controversies in athletics today is the use of anabolic steroids by athletes. Those who know about them, however, say steroids are not controversial; they are harmful and even deadly.

Unfortunately, steroids are the biggest drug problem in professional and college athletics, and their use has now begun to filter down into high school athletics.

The abuse of steroids has grown each year. Estimates are that 85 percent of offensive and defensive linemen in the NFL and USFL use steroids regularly.

A 1975 survey found that 31 percent of all international athletes were using or had used anabolic steroids.

A 1981 report claimed that 99 percent of male professional body builders and 10 percent of female body builders use steroids.

Pressures on athletes at all levels result in many taking steroids that they believe will increase size and strength and, thus, performance.

Research conducted on the effects of anabolic steroids on muscular development and strength has shown that steroids do not have proven value in increasing weight training progress, and, moreover, several negative side effects are suspected to result from prolonged use of the drugs.

Steroid drugs became available for experimental and therapeutic use in the 1930s and were used by scientists to help maintain strength in aging men.

During World War II they were used to help restore positive nitrogen balance in victims of forced starvation.

They became popular among athletes in the 1960s when a Pennsylvania physician reasoned that steroids might increase the use of protein to form additional muscle in those who trained their bodies and were well nourished.

The most popular drugs used by athletes are the androgenic-anabolic steroids. These are synthetic forms of testosterone and other male hormones.

Anabolic steroids used by athletes have been manufactured to perform the same functions as testosterone.

They stimulate the growth of body tissue, especially in males at the age before puberty and in males with malfunctioning testes.

However, in normal males, the body tissues can respond to testosterone and steroids to a certain point and once this level of hormone is reached in the blood, further effects on growth are minimal.

When normal, healthy men take steroids without training, no effect on muscular size or strength can be detected.

Studies which control the placebo effect of steroids have failed to show any gains in strength.

Slight gains in size were attributed to the increased retention of water that accompanies steroids.

Nonetheless, many athletes insist that anabolic steroids improve their strength.

First, the androgenic action of steroids makes an athlete more aggressive and more competitive, thus, the athlete trains harder and longer.

Second, athletes believe that the pills or injections they are receiving will increase their strength. As a result, they work harder.

Any increase in performance or strength, therefore, is a result of harder training and increased aggressiveness.

Several possible complications are associated with steroid use. Among these are liver damage, cancer of the liver, atrophy of the testicles and an increase in total cholesterol.

Steroids may cause temporary sterility, masculinize the female (by stimulating growth of hair on the face, legs, and abdomen), cause or aggravate acne and stop growth in young athletes. Long term effects on reproductive functions are suspected.

Even if the use of steroids were legal and would guarantee high performance, the benefits could not possibly be worth even a slight risk of contracting liver cancer or another disease.

Physical educators, coaches, trainers, athletes, and doctors should use every opportunity to discourage use of these drugs.

The best hope for stopping the abuse is a strong program of education for all athletes, bodybuilders and weightlifters, as well as their coaches and parents, to convince them that steroids are harmful and dangerous.

The 12th season of Mississippi ETV's "Quorum" series, which features legislators taking about the issues facing them in the state capitol, is scheduled to premiere at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The series will continue to air in that time slot until the legislature adjourns, and "The Nightly Business Report" will be delayed until 10:30 p.m. on Wednesdays until then.

Each week, "Quorum" host Howard Lett will talk with two senators and two representatives about a pre-determined topic. The legislators then answer questions called in by viewers on statewide, toll-free lines.

Some of the topics expected to be discussed this season are kindergarten funding, state budget cuts, issues surrounding colleges and universities in the state and highway department funding.

The leaning tower of Pisa increases its inclination by one foot each 100 years.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, JANUARY 9, 1986-1C

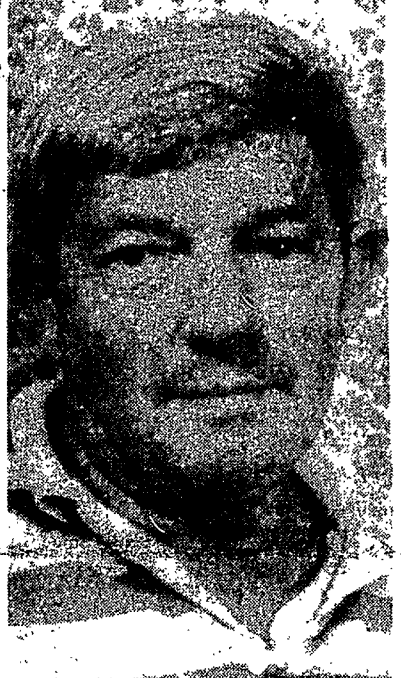

Kiln Water and Fire Protection District enters sixth year

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Kiln Water and Fire Protection District is entering its sixth year of service with almost 400 households on its membership list, but it is still a community project.

The district also begins 1986 with one new commissioner, Carl Olsen, who began his five-year term Jan. 1 after being appointed by the board of supervisors. He succeeds Robert Bilbo, who had served the district since 1980.

Also serving on the commission are C.J. Maufrey, Glen Stockstill, Cleveland Wyatt Jr. and Royce Shlyou.

CLEVELAND WYATT

According to Wyatt, who serves as commission chairman, the district originally served less than 250 households in the Kiln area.

The service area, after an expansion into the Rocky Hill community in 1981 that added 15 miles of pipeline to the original 35 miles, now extends south to Airport Road, north to the Coast Electric Power Association radio tower at Rocky Hill, east to Silver Creek Acres and west to Fire Tower Road.

Michael Haas, commission attorney, said about 90 percent of the residences and businesses in the district are using the water service, with the remaining 10 percent still using private wells.

Some of those still on private wells utilize the district's system when their water freezes. In addition, the district has a hook-up with Jourdan River Shores and may provide water to the subdivision in emergencies.

Generating equipment keeps the well operating during emergencies like Hurricane Elena.

Wyatt said it will be a long time before the district has to consider sinking a second well.

"The well is 660 feet deep and we're sitting right on top of the best strata in Hancock County," he explained.

Although the service area is larger and more equipment for both the water system and the Kiln Volunteer Fire Department has been obtained, some aspects of the district have remained unchanged almost since a group of local residents began efforts to establish the district and obtain Farmer's Home Administration funds for the project began in 1977.

Since then, the district has had the same manager, Hugo V. "Dutch" Haas, and the same water rates.

The rates begin at $6 per month for the first 2,000 gallons; $1.50 per 1,000 gallons for the next 3,000 gallons; $1 per 1,000 for the next 3,000 gallons; 80 cents per 1,000 for the next 2,000 gallons; and 60 cents per 1,000 for all users over 10,000 gallons.

"We have the lowest rates around. We're lower than Bay St. Louis or Waveland," Wyatt said.

"We're strictly non-profit. We have to be very careful with our money because we're still a small system."

"We're now at the point where we can contract out for a few things. When we started we couldn't even do that."

He praised the management by Hugo Haas, who is the district's only full-time salaried employee.

"Dutch is so honest and tight with a dollar I don't know if we could manage with anyone else," Wyatt said.

The water fees cover maintenance and daily operations of the system. Anything else must be purchased through funds from annual memberships drives or donated.

Donations include equipment like the generator as well as time and labor provided by the 15 to 20 active members of the Kiln Volunteer Fire Department.

The fire department gets some additional funding through a two-mill tax levied by the county. That tax provides fire monitors in the homes of firefighters.

Much of the work at the Kiln fire station is done by the volunteers, including maintenance of the district's five trucks, Haas added.

"Every time we go to a Farmer's Home Administration meeting, they talk about rural water systems and they use Kiln for a model," Wyatt said.

"We started without a penny except for a grant and a 40-year loan from Farmer's Home, and look where we are now."

"I believe this is the only rural community in the state with fireplugs. They didn't really want us to try that, but there was no legal reason we could not," Haas added.

"We knew if we got the community involved that we could make it work."

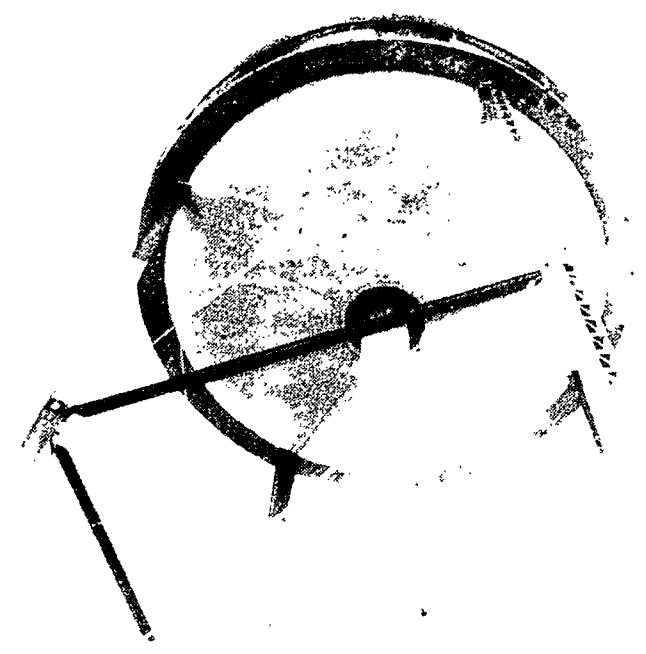

The district is presently trying to get its fire insurance rating changed. The water system is nearly ready except for an emergency tie-in with Stennis Airport, Wyatt said.

He said the district's efforts have been getting a good response from the community.

"Even some of the ones who fought it at first have come back and gotten on the system," the commissioner said.

The district not only provides Kiln residents with water and fire protection, but with a community center. The commissioners' meeting room, a recent addition to the fire station, is used for various types of civic meetings.

WATER WELL—The Kiln Water and Fire Protection District's well currently serves about 400 households.

GENERATING EQUIPMENT—A donated generator provides power for the pumps on the Kiln well during emergencies like hurricanes.

the district. The district presently has five trucks, most of which were obtained through donations.

IS DRINKING AND DRIVING WORTH
LOSING A FRIEND.
PERMANENTLY?

The moment called for celebration. Steve and Tommy's college room assignments had been confirmed, promising the continuation of a friendship that had started in the first grade. Sharing a six-pack, they sped along in Tommy's car discussing high school graduation and plans for their future. But the wreck was something neither had figured on. Now Tommy needs a new roommate.

Junior College Day slated at Ole Miss

"Junior College Day"—a special first-time, one-day event designed exclusively for junior college students—has been scheduled for Friday, Feb. 7, at The University of Mississippi.

A variety of activities have been planned for prospective transfer students—including transcript evaluations, job placement seminars, career and financial aid counseling, and meetings with academic deans and other University officials.

There will be a campuswide academic open house for students interested in a specific department and fine arts auditions for possible scholarships in music, theatre, art and dance. Band, chorus and debate auditions will also be held.

The day begins at 9:30 a.m. in the Ole Miss Union ballroom and most of the activities will be centered around that building. Tours and meetings will be held until noon, when a complimentary luncheon will be served in the University cafeteria's East Room. During the luncheon, there will be a panel discussion by current Ole Miss students who transferred from junior colleges, followed by a questions and answer session.

Complimentary overnight accommodations in student residence halls are available with advance notice. For more information, contact Acting Admissions Director Beckett Howorth, telephone (601) 232-7226 or toll-free in Mississippi 1-800-222-5102.

Red Tops' music lives on through gift to Ole Miss Blues Archive

For three decades, Mississippi clubs, dance halls and fraternity houses rocked with the music of the Red Tops, a Vicksburg dance band who recorded the upbeat hit "Swanee River Rock."

Now, a collection of Red Tops music and memorabilia has been donated to The University of Mississippi's Center for the Study of Southern Culture and the Ole Miss Blues Archive by the band's leader, Walter Osborne.

Dr. Bill Ferris, center director, said the collection includes tapes and records of studio and live performances, as well as business journals, ledgers and cash books, Social Security time books, and appointment books listing all Red Tops performances from 1953-73 with notes about each. There is also a lengthy tape and transcript of an interview with Osborne.

Ferris is disappointed that there is no tape or record of "Danny Boy" in the collection, a song that highlighted each Red Tops performance when lead singer Rufus McKay would hold the high note for incredibly long periods of time. He hopes that perhaps someone might have made a recording and would be willing to donate it to the collection.

The center is also soliciting any other Red Top memorabilia that Mississippi citizens might have in scrapbooks, closets or attics. Anyone wishing to make a donation to the collection is asked to contact Ferris at the Center for Study of Southern Culture, University, MS 38677; telephone 232-5993.
